

A portable information radio terminal device can maintain electrical connection of electronic parts mounted on the board in a device body when the portable information radio terminal device is subject to an impact (external force) due to falling down or so forth. The portable information radio terminal device includes a device body, a printed board provided in the device body, an electronic part provided on the printed board; and an elastic member supporting the printed board within the device body.